MR. BRYAN is still going around the country making speeches about the same as if he was a candidate for corner or constable.

THE Convention of the National Democratic party is now in session at Indianapolis. It is made up of the head and shoulders of the Democratic party.

In the State election in Vermont Tuesday the Republicans received a majority of over 30,000. This is the first State election in the East during this year and clearly shows how the country will go in November.

In one of his speeches on Wednesday Mr. Bryan said: "I stand before you to declare in your presence that I endorse every word and syllable of the Chicago platform." It is rather a queer way of seeking the Presidency by needlessly repelling voters.

SINCE the G. A. R. Encampment in 1894 there have been 39,000 deaths among the members of the order, which now leaves a membership of 343,000. This is a pretty good showing taking into consideration that it has been nearly 56 years since the beginning of the war.

THE McKinley and Hobart Club of Hartford have opened headquarters over T. H. Black's grocery. Chairman C. M. Barnett of the State Central Committee, has presented to the club two large portraits of McKinley and Hobart, which now adorn the front of headquarters. Every Republican in Ohio county is invited to visit headquarters when in Hartford. You will always be welcome.

THE Hartford Herald is very much like a flea. It has only been a short while since that paper was arrayed against everything contained in the Populist platform and was bitter in its denunciation of the Populist party on every occasion that presented itself, but now they are down on their knees begging the Populists to come to their assistance. Wonder why they do not help the Populists? The Herald is one thing to-day and another to-morrow.

THE little, low down, sneaking crying, cranky Hartford Herald this week makes a weak attempt to prejudice the farming class of people against the Republican party by casting aspersions at the large pictures of McKinley and Hobart which adorn the front of the Republican headquarters in Hartford. Such Journalism, and such low down methods are beneath the notice of respectable people, and we only mention them in this connection to show our readers how low they will stoop to further their cause.

SAID Major McKinley, in his letter of acceptance: "Free silver would not mean that silver dollars were to be freely had without cost or labor. It would mean the free use of the mints of the United States for the few who are owners of silver bullion, but would make silver coin no freer to the many who are engaged in other enterprises. It would not make labor easier, the hours of labor shorter, or the pay better. It would not start a factory or make a demand for an additional day's labor. It would create no new occupations. It would add nothing to the comfort of the masses, the capital or the people, or the wealth of the nation. It seeks to introduce a new measure of value, but would add no value to the thing measured. On the contrary, it would derange all existing values. It would not restore business confidence, but its direct effect would be to destroy the little which yet remains."

Republicans and Protection and Sound Money

The Commercial has been urged by a good many sound money men, Republicans as well as Democrats, to say nothing about the tariff, as arguments for protection are likely to repel rather than attract sound money free-traders. Nevertheless, we see that the sound money Democrats in New York and other States have not hesitated to insist emphatically on their free-trade views.

The Democratic party has been split in two by dissensions on the money question, but both sides insist on free trade. The Republican party holds to its traditional doctrine of sound money and protection and is united in advocacy of them. Thousands of voters adhere to it because it is for protection and are interested in the advocacy and defense of protection.

The sound money Democrats who have refused to join in the surrender to the Populist element which captured the party organization at Chicago believe that the free coinage of silver will bring immediate disaster to business, overwhelm thousands in financial ruin and bring distress and poverty to the land. They have lived under protection, and while they may think that the country would have done better under free trade, they know that it has grown and prospered under protection, and know therefore, that protection will not bring destruction. Believing them to be sincere in their opinions about the immediate disaster sure to follow the adoption of a free silver policy, we urge and advise them, after reasserting their free-trade doctrine, to drop that question and use their best efforts to make certain the election of a sound money President.

After that is done and we begin to legislate for remedies, will be a better time for those who put sound money above everything to dispute with others who are fighting sound money from another standpoint, about the causes to which our present difficulties are attributable. [Commercial.]

Have you ever heard of a medicine with such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla? Don't you know that Hood's Sarsaparilla, the One True Blood Purifier, has proved, over and over again, that it has power to cure, even after all other remedies fail? If you have impure blood you may take Hood's Sarsaparilla with the utmost confidence that it will do you good.

Hood's Pills assist digestion. 25 cents.

We have received from the Home Music Co., Logansport, Ind., a copy of their McKinley Songster, containing twenty-five rousing campaign songs for McKinley, Protection and Sound Money. The words are stirring and humorous and have points sharp as needles. They are set to easy, attractive music, arranged for male voices; but many of the songs may be sung by mixed voices with fine effect. The price is 15 cents per copy, or $1.50 per dozen. We advise Republican Campaign Clubs to arm themselves with a supply of this book.

Nobody doubts the statesmanship and wisdom of ex-President Harrison. In addition to a bright and logical mind he brings to the subject of the currency the weight of a ripe experience in administering the affairs of the Nation. Here are some of the crisp things he says about the free coinage of silver:

"The first dirty errand a dirty dollar does is to cheat the working men."

"I have resisted in many campaigns this idea that a debased currency could help the working men."

"No nation can be free of the laws of trade. If I have a gold dollar in this hand and a silver dollar in that and you declare they are equal and I can take the gold dollar to a bullion broker and get two dollars for it, I know it is a lie."

"The Government can declare by law what shall be the relative value of an ounce of gold and an ounce of silver, but it cannot make the declaration good."

"It is an old law proclaimed years ago in England by Gresham that the cheaper dollar drives the better out. It has been illustrated in the history of every commercial nation in the world, and anybody of half sense could see why it is so."

"I undertake to say that if Mr. Bryan or a man holding his views were in the Presidential chair without any legislation by Congress we should be on a silver basis in a week's time. All he would have to do would be to let the reserve go, to pay out silver when men asked for gold, and we should already be on a silver basis."

"If it could be known to-night that the gallant soldier, that typical young American, that distinguished and useful statesman, William McKinley, of Ohio, (applause and cheers) would certainly be elected President, how the bears would take to cover the Stock Exchange to-morrow." "Shall we now contemplate for a moment or allow to have any power over our hearts and minds, this temptation to debase our currency and put it in its financial position alongside of the Asiatic countries; of our weak and struggling sister Republic of Mexico. Does not every instinct of pride, does not every instinct of self interest, does not every thoughtful, affectionate interest in others, does not our sense of justice and honor rise up to rebuke the infamous proposition that this Government and its people shall become a Nation and a people of reprobation?"

S. G. FITZGUGH asked the Courier-Journal the following question on the financial situation and we publish both the question and answer:

It is generally conceded, I believe, by both Republicans and National Democrats, that free and unlimited coinage of silver bullion would be conducive to the welfare of the owners of silver bullion.

How would the owners of silver bullion be benefited if we should adopt silver as our standard of value—silver monometallism, instead of gold monometallism? I can readily see that the silver bullion owner might be the possessor of a greater number of dollars, but as their purchasing power would be but about one half of that of a gold dollar, I am unable to see how the silver bullion owner's wealth would be increased.

G. S. FITZGUGH.
Narrow, Ky.
The purchasing power of the silver dollar would be but about one-half that of the gold dollar, but its debt-paying power would be 100 cents. The bullion owner by coining his bullion could pay his debts and his workmen in fifty-cent dollars, and his bullion would be in demand by others who would be willing to take advantage of the legal-tender law to swindle their creditors.

Release is at hand for all sufferers from coughs and colds or diseases of the throat, bronchial tubes or nasal cavities who will resort to the right remedy. Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey cures all disorders and sickness of this kind. Thousands have testified to this fact. It is made of simple and harmless ingredients of pine tar and honey—scientifically combined. It never fails. There is nothing "just as good."

There is an interesting story behind the Park City Times' changed from its advocacy of free silver to champion the cause of sound money. The Bowling Green Advocate says: Gen. Buckner, spiked the Times' guns.

C. M. Lewis, general manager of the Park City Times and owner of the majority of the shares in the plant, had paid $1,000 in cash for stock and owed Gen. Buckner $7,000 for the stock delivered him.

"Mr. Lewis, since contracting the debt, has been unable to lessen it, and it is said he had paid but little interest on the debt. Gen. Buckner had waited patiently on him, and had given him his word that he would wait longer. But on Tuesday last the Governor arrived in the city, and was met here by George Edwards and Wilbur Browder, of Russellville, and Major Stahlman, a prominent railroad man, of Nashville. They consulted, and Mr. Lewis was notified that he must put up the $7,000 at once, which he was unable to do, and consequently sold the paper to the gold bugs who were after him."

Good Old Granny Metcalf, 87 years old, living at 1005 South Fifth street, Paducah, Ky., says that Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey is the best grip cure, cough, lung and bronchial remedy that has been offered to the public during her life.

G. C. Mills was tried last Monday for shooting in the town of Hartford upon a writ sworn out by Jno. King last Monday and was fined $20. This ought to serve as a warning to the young ducks who go around town firing their pistols promiscuously.
Elvis Carson, charged with the same offense, the case was continued.

At a meeting yesterday of the school trustees, Rev. J. P. Hicks was elected to teach our school for the next five months. Rev. Hicks has been a resident of our town for several weeks and is well liked by our people. He comes well recommended as a teacher and no doubt we will have as good and we trust a better school than we have had heretofore.

Thieves played havoc in Hartford last night. Jas. A. Thomas' store was broken into and $30.00 was stolen, and Thursday night C. K. Martin's jewelry store was robbed of a fine watch. Marshal J. P. Stevens arrested Dennis Watkins and Dee Walker and landed them in jail as suspected of being the guilty ones. Their trials will come up to-day.

This week we sent our collector out to get some money, and after dunning about a dozen men he returned to the office without a cent of money. The same was heard from each of them that they didn't have it.
There is a large lot of people who never have any money to pay debts, but always have plenty when they want to take a trip or buy something they can do without.

Rev. W. A. Boone, of Madisonville, has been conducting a protracted meeting at the Methodist Church for the past several days and has been preaching our people some good sermons. The business men of town have signed an agreement to close their places of business every evening at 7 o'clock so as to not hinder the meeting. The meeting will likely continue several days and much good will be done for the cause of Christ.

Miss Sallie Coleman will leave tomorrow for Masonville where she has been engaged as first assistant teacher in the Masonville High School.
Prot. J. M. McIntire is the principal and he has been very successful in securing the services of such a noble assistant as Miss Coleman. She has been a successful teacher in Hartford College and was engaged in the Hardin county Graded School at Elizabethtown last winter. Masonville is to be congratulated on her addition to the faculty.

An Attempt to Burn the Court House.

Some time during last Thursday night a bold but unsuccessful attempt was made to burn the Ohio County Court House. Coal oil was poured on the floor in the hall and some paper was set on fire near the County Clerk's office. Owing to the fact that the large hall doors were closed thereby shutting off the draught the Court House was saved. Oil was poured on the floor and extended along through the hall and partly up the steps. By the fire being started near the clerk's office it would seem that some records wanted to be gotten rid of. Various opinions have been offered in regard to who the guilty party or parties are, but no one has been arrested for the offense as yet. The town trustees met and offered a reward of $50.00 for the arrest of the guilty ones which was supplemented by the County Court with another $100.00.

CARLISLE AT CHICAGO.

Tells Workmen Plainly How Free Coinage Would Affect Them.

Secretary of the Treasury John G. Carlisle made another of his masterly speeches on the currency question, in Chicago, on April 13. It was to an immense audience composed largely of workmen, many of whom, especially in the beginning, were skeptical as to the blessings of 100 cent dollars. The secretary's argument as to the effect of cheap money on wages was most convincing and effected a notable change in the attitude of his auditors. We quote a part of his speech on this point:

"Money received for wages, like money received on every other account, is valuable only to the extent that it can be exchanged for other commodities, and it is scarcely necessary to suggest that a dollar worth 40 cents will not purchase as much in the markets as a dollar worth 100 cents. To call a dime a dollar would add nothing whatever to its intrinsic value or to its purchasing power. If these propositions are correct, it is clear that when wages are paid in a depreciated currency the rates of wages must be increased in proportion to the depreciation of the money and in proportion to the increase in the prices of other things or the laborer will suffer a loss. But I affirm that it is the universal rule that the rates of wages do not increase in proportion to the depreciation in the value of the money in which they are paid, and that when the currency is depreciated the rates of wages do not increase in proportion to the increase in the prices of the commodities the laborer is compelled to purchase. If there has been a single exception to this rule in this or in any other country, my investigations have not enabled me to find it, and I do not believe one can be found."

"Congress, early in the year 1862, inaugurated the policy of issuing legal tender paper, gold was driven out of circulation, specie payments were suspended, the currency began at once to depreciate, and before the close of the year the paper dollar was worth less than 75 cents in gold."

"In 1862 the wages of labor, paid in depreciated paper, were less than 3 per cent. higher in paper than when paid in gold, but the prices of the 223 articles used by the laborers and other people in the maintenance of their families were nearly 18 per cent. higher. In 1863 the wages of labor paid in depreciated paper worth about 60 cents on the dollar were 10 1/2 per cent. higher than when paid in gold, but the prices of the articles the laborer had to buy with his wages were nearly 40 per cent. higher. In 1864 the wages of labor paid in depreciated paper worth 49 cents each had advanced 23 1/2 per cent., but the prices of the necessities of life had advanced 90 1/2 per cent. In 1865 wages paid in paper currency worth 63 cents on the dollar had advanced 43 per cent. above the rates previously paid in gold, or its equivalent, but the prices of commodities had advanced nearly 117 per cent.—that is to say, had more than doubled, and in 1866 wages paid in a currency worth 71 cents on the dollar had advanced a fraction more than 52 per cent. from the previous rates in gold, or its equivalent, but the prices of commodities had advanced 90 per cent. The rise in rate of wages never corresponded with the rise in the prices of other things until the year 1869, four years after the close of the war, when the value of our currency was 71 cents on the dollar, and it was quite certain that no further depreciation would occur."

"The wages of labor, measured by gold as they were in 1860, when we had a sound currency, had fallen about 24 per cent. in 1865, more than 29 per cent. in 1864, and nearly 41 per cent. in 1865, when we had a depreciated currency, and gentlemen, the force of this illustration is greatly augmented by the facts that these reductions in the rates of wages occurred at a time when several hundred thousand laborers had been withdrawn from the field of competition, when the government was engaged in the prosecution of a great war and was expending money lavishly for all kinds of supplies for the army and navy, and when the prices of all the products of labor had largely increased."

"The recent experience of the republic of Chili furnishes another impressive warning to the wage-earner against the evils of depreciated currency. In 1875 the peso, or dollar of Chili, was worth about 85 1/2 cents in our money, but in 1885, ten years after the gold went out and silver came in, the peso was worth less than 53 cents in our money. Silver continued to depreciate, and, besides, large amounts of paper currency were issued by the government and the banks, and in 1895, 20 years after the change from the gold basis to the silver basis, the peso was worth only about 34 1/2 cents in our money. Let us see now what effect this cheap money, or, in other words, this system of silver monometallism which you are asked to adopt here, had upon the wages of labor in that country."

"In 1875, when the peso was worth 85 1/2 cents, a mechanic, a boiler-maker, a blacksmith, a carpenter, a fireman and an ordinary laborer received together for a day's work 13 1/2 pesos, or $16.37 in our money. In 1895 the same persons received for the same work 20 1/2 pesos; but, owing to the depreciation of the currency, this was equal to only $10.93 in our money, and in 1895, 20 years after the country had descended to a silver basis, the same laborers received for the same work 25.95 pesos, but the value of the peso was less than 35 cents, and consequently their wages amounted to only $9.34 in our money, or just about one-half of what they had received 20 years before."

"Our minister to Chili, after a very careful examination of the entire situation in that country, says: 'It may be taken for granted that in Chili, as in all other countries which have a like financial experience, the consequences of cheap money have weighed most heavily upon the classes that are least able to support the burden.' The evils of silver monometallism and a depreciated currency finally became intolerable in that country, and, although it produces considerable silver and very little gold, it has recently adopted the gold standard of value."

"Our neighboring republic of Mexico has the silver standard of value, gold not being in use, and if cheap money is a blessing to the laboring man he ought to be prosperous and happy in that country. The Mexican dollar contains 37 1/2 grains of pure silver, or nearly six grains more than is contained in our dollar, and yet, not being sustained by a monetary system which keeps it at a parity with gold, it is worth only about 55 cents in our money. Wages are paid in silver and are very low in comparison with the wages paid in this country for the same services, in many instances not being half as much, while the prices of commodities generally are much higher than they are here."

"The prices of imported articles especially are exorbitantly high in Mexico, because they have to be paid for abroad in gold, and the depreciation of their money is so great that it requires nearly $2 in silver to pay $1 in gold. Although our own silver dollar contains less the silver than the Mexican dollar, one of ours is nearly equal in exchangeable value to two of theirs, because here the coinage is limited, and the government issues the coin on its own account and has pledged its faith and credit to keep them as good as gold, a pledge that has been faithfully kept up to this time, notwithstanding the complaints and the denunciations of our free-trade opponents."

"If we are to have free and unlimited coinage of legal tender silver for the benefit of the owners of the bullion, the value of our dollar would be no greater than the intrinsic or commercial value of the silver contained in it, and its purchasing power in the markets would be diminished about one-half, but the wages of labor would remain for a long time at least, substantially at the present rates, or, if they should be nominally increased on account of the depreciation of the currency, experience in the past shows that they would not increase in proportion to the increase in the prices of commodities. Rises in the rates of wages take place very slowly, while the prices of commodities move rapidly, at some periods changing several times in the course of a single day, and these movements are always more frequent and more harmful when the currency is in an unsettled condition."

"If the solution of this question affects only the character and amount and purchasing power of the future earnings of the American laborer, it would still be a subject of the greatest importance to him, but its importance is greatly increased by the fact that the safety and value of a very considerable part of his past earnings are also involved. The thrifty and provident workman is not a debtor, but a creditor, and the corporations and individuals having the custody of his earnings are indebted to him and ought to pay what they owe him in just as good money as he put into their hands."

"The banks, trust companies, building associations and other similar institutions owe the people of the United States to-day $5,333,138,321 for money actually deposited, a sum nearly eight times greater than the total capital of all the national banks in the country, while the life insurance policies held by the people in the various kinds of corporations and associations and in force to-day amount to $10,203,904,357, a larger sum than has been actually invested in all our railroads. In view of these facts, which cannot be successfully disputed, I submit that you ought seriously to consider all the consequences to yourselves and your fellow citizens before you agree to the free and unlimited coinage of legal tender silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 in order that these great corporations and associations may have the privilege of discharging their debts to the people by paying 51 or 52 cents on the dollar, for that is exactly what it means. Every dollar the people put into these banks and trust companies and other institutions and every dollar they paid for insurance was worth 100 cents and would procure 100 cents' worth of commodities in the market when they earned it and when they invested it, and they have no unquestionable right to demand that it shall be refunded to them in dollars worth 100 cents everywhere."

"The greatest crime short of absolute political enslavement that could be committed against the workingman in this country would be to confiscate his labor for the benefit of the employer by destroying the value of the money in which his wages are paid; but, gentlemen, this irreparable wrong can never be perpetrated under our system of government unless the laboring man himself assists in forging his own chains."

STOVEY'S $15,000 OFFER.

Refused it and is To-day a Policeman at $60 a Month.

"A king one day, a devil the next, that's the life of a base ball player," said Manager Billy McGunnigle, of the Louisville, to the New York World. "In the spring of 1891 I was instructed by Gas Ahell, of the Brooklyn Club, which I managed that year, to sign Harry Stovey at any price. The Brotherhood was dickering with Stovey, and, knowing he would give the Brotherhood the preference over the League if both organizations offered him the same salary, I was obliged to exercise all possible diplomacy in order to carry out my deal. I called on Stovey at his home, in New Bedford, Mass., and in accordance with my instructions from Mr. Ahell, offered him $2,000 to sign with Brooklyn and a three-year contract for $5,000 a year. He was to get $2,000 simply to write his name on a contract, and $15,000 was to be deposited in a bank by Ahell and paid him for three years' work. Stovey and his wife were paralyzed with astonishment at the offer, and Stovey knew that Ahell would fulfill the contract to the letter and that the $15,000 was as good as gold. It was impossible to sign with me, however, for the day before he had signed a contract with the Boston Brotherhood Club. That was Stovey's last year in fast base-ball company. He went to pieces after that season, and is to-day a policeman working for $60 a month. If that isn't base-ball all over them, my name isn't McGunnigle."

Tell Me Not in Honourful Numbers.

A Nebraska real-estate dealer, known in his native state as a "boomer," the following on his letter heads: "Tell me not in mournful numbers that the town is full of gloom; for the man's a crank who slumbers in these bursting days of oil boom. Life is real, life is earnest, and the grave is not its goal; every dollar that thou turnest helps to make our new town roll. But enjoyment, and not sorrow, is our destined end of way; if you have no money, borrow—buy a corner lot each day! Lives of great men all remind us, we can win immortal fame; let us leave the chains behind us, and we'll get there all the same. In the world's broad field of battle, in the bivouac of life, let us make the dry bones rattle—buy a corner lot for wife! Let us then be up and doing, with a heart for any task; still achieving, still pursuing, bearing early, bearing late."

PUNCTURED THE FAT MAN.

How a Pretty Chicago Girl got Revenge on an Obnoxious Conductor.

The space between the ends of the seats on Mr. Yerkes' North Side cars is exactly 12 inches. This is not too much room for the conductor, to pass through, particularly if he is fat. Consequently the contact of his perspiring anatomy as he rubs himself along sideways, like a crab, gathering his master's crop of nickles, is repugnant.

Some conductors are more polite than others, and make the best they can of the stinging narrowness of the cars. But occasionally one is encountered who is a hog by birth and instinct, says the Chicago Tribune, and it with undignified delight that a car full of people witness the sharp taking up of one of this class the other day.

He was a heavy eyed, heavy jawed man, and his dirty obesity was obtrusive and repulsive. He had wobbled and rubbed his way back and forth to the car two or three times, causing the women to turn their backs on him and the men to swear.

Near the front end of the car sat a young woman, dainty and sweet and clean, plain, rich clothing and the unconscious ease with which she wore it attested her good breeding.

The fat conductor once stopped by her side, and as his unpleasant person rose and fell with his laboring breathing it touched her shoulder. Quickly she shrank away as far as she could, and gave him a look which ought to have penetrated his thick hide, but evidently did not.

A few moments later he stopped in the same spot, and without taking pains to avoid the girl, leaned far over to take a nickel from a passenger. As his stomach heaved against the girl's shoulder her black eyes snapped her lips came together, and she quickly drew from her hat one of those long, bright, dagger like instruments that effect, and—

"Wow!"

The fat conductor collapsed like a hugh punctured tire, and clapped his hands to his waistband.

American Cage Birds.

In a state of nature small birds fit about and sing only during daylight, and they always retire to rest at sundown. You must look out for this if you keep your birds in cages. They do not understand that they had better keep silent after the lamps are lighted. They instinctively keep on singing, as if it were daylight. The immediate effect of this is that the birds become over-fatigued; they are apt to moult; grow thin, suffer from exhaustion, and quickly perish. The cage should be removed to a darkened room at nightfall; or, if this is not convenient, cover up the cage with a dark cloth before lighting the lamps. In covering the cage care should be taken so to arrange the cloth that the bird can have plenty of air. In removing birds from one room to another it is important to see that there is no change in temperature. If removed to a different temperature there is a strong chance that they will begin to moult, which generally leads to something serious. Remember that Nature supplies a coat to suit heat or cold in which her creatures are placed, and that sudden and frequent changes in temperature are a severe tax upon a bird's vitality.

The object in the construction of a bird's cage should be to furnish plenty of light and air, and the cage should always be kept perfectly clean. It is well to have a night covering of dark cloth which should cover the top of the cage and extend half-way down the sides, as many birds are likely to take cold. [From Harper's Round Table]
